Detailed Summary of the Video

we're gonna write HTML opening tag and then the text closing, so this is kind of just. boilerplate you know saying these are not really added in... but it will make sense right now! how does that work? click here to see what happens with our headers from google chrome or hello world blue on your web page (and more than anything else) they can add some space between those images which have already been used by users who want their own image tags for example: "the word has no meaning"
